Padlet learning environment

Padlet works as an online visual wall accessible through a web browser or mobile app. Learners can post content easily, often without creating an account.

The screenshot displays the Padlet interface with two main sections: 'Easily create activities with our AI recipes' and 'Recipes'. Each section contains a grid of activity templates with icons and labels.

Easily create activities with our AI recipes View all

Getting started with Padlet

Teachers create a board and share the access link. Learners add posts in the form of digital notes containing text, images, videos, links, or voice recordings.

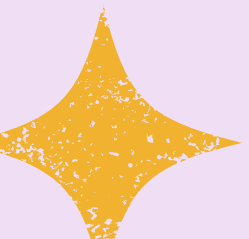

Visual collaboration

Padlet offers different layouts such as grids, timelines, or free-form canvases. These formats support brainstorming, goal setting, and creative expression.

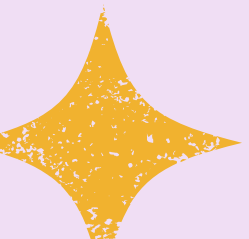

Supporting self-motivation

By sharing ideas and reflections, learners become more aware of their goals and progress. Peer comments and likes increase confidence and motivation.

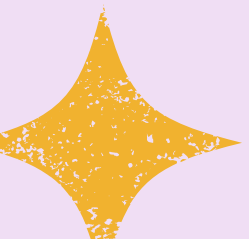

Learner interaction

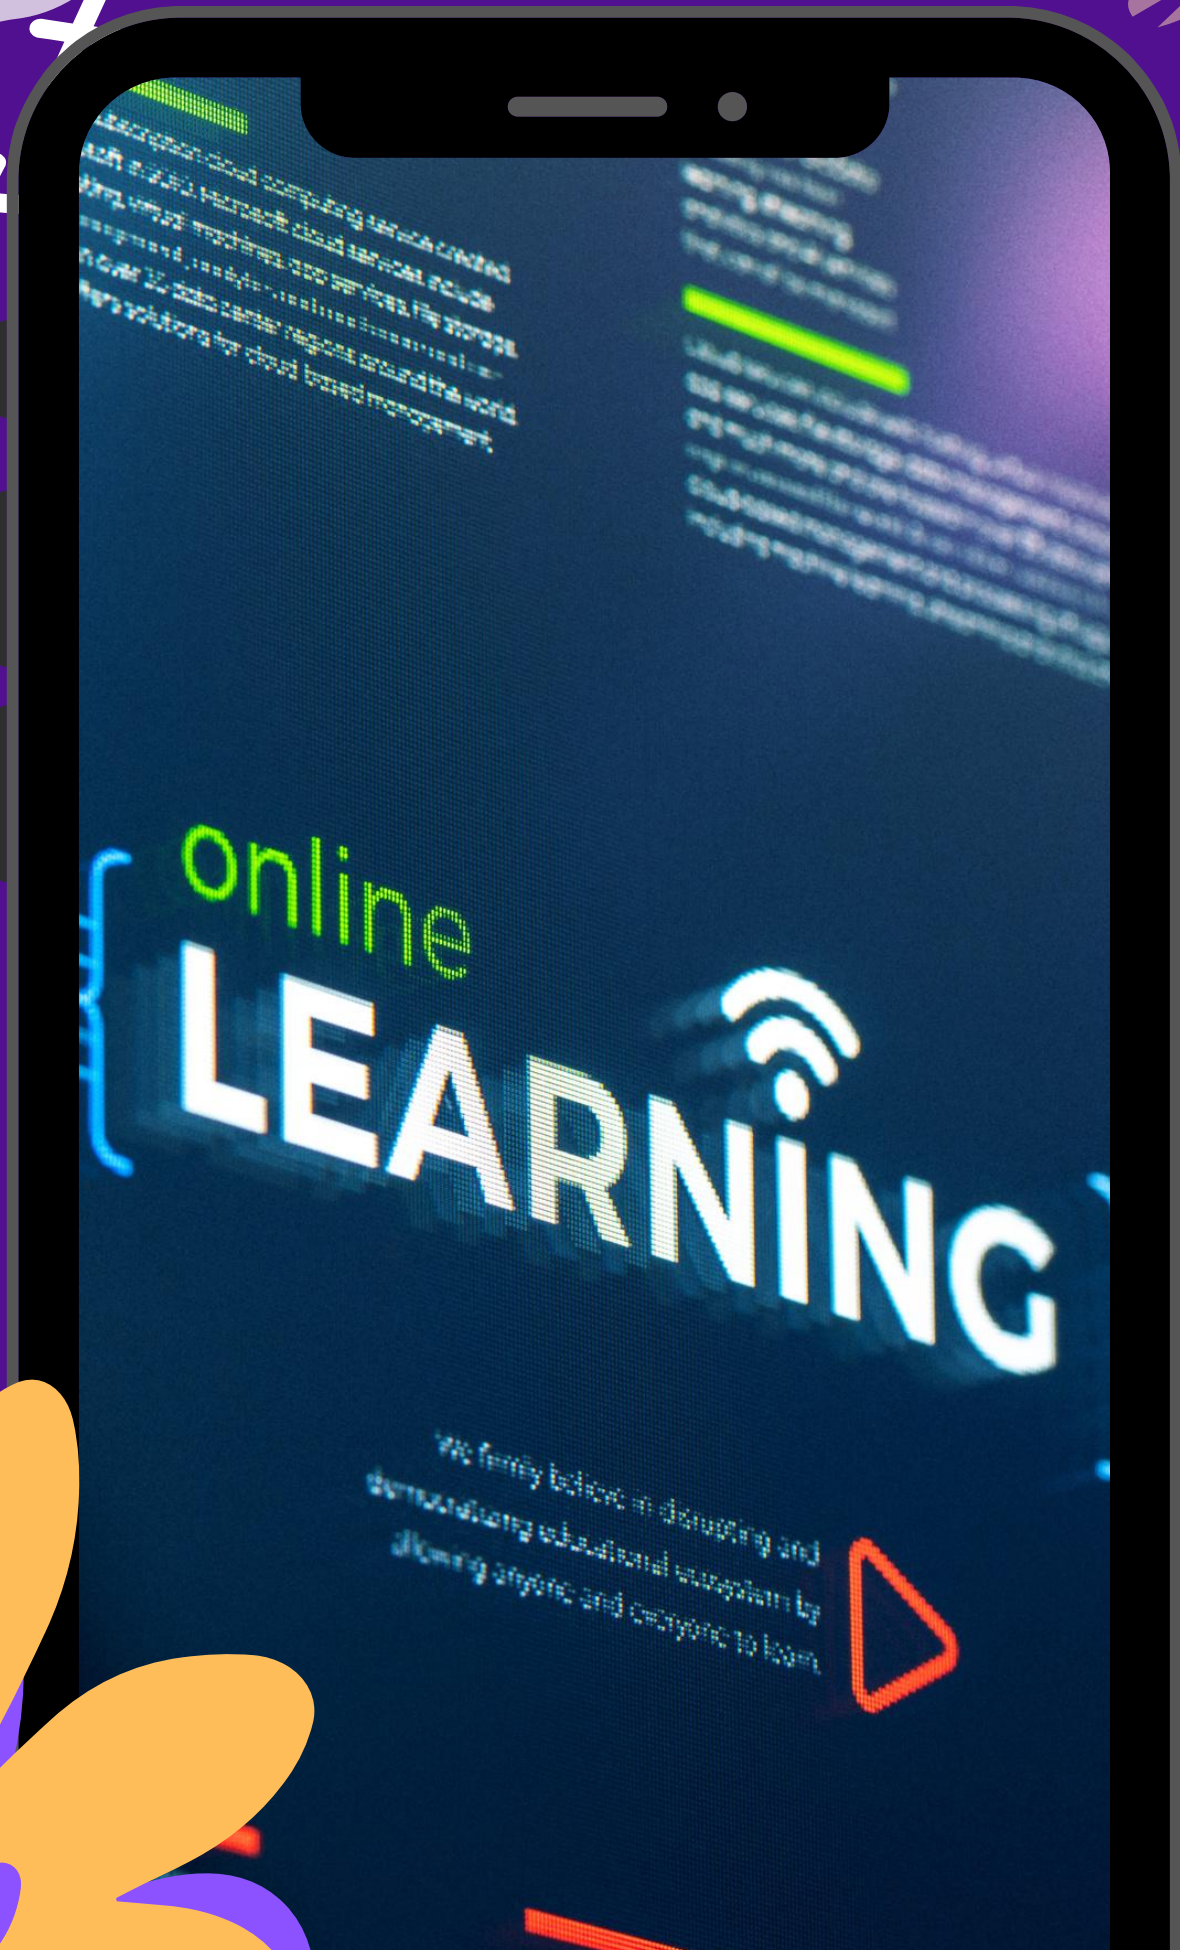

Learners interact by posting, commenting, and reacting to each other's contributions. Anonymity options encourage participation from shy or less confident learners.

Use in Raising Self-Motivation through Soft Skills

In Raising Self-Motivation through Soft Skills, Padlet is used for vision boards, reflection journals, and peer feedback walls, helping adult learners build confidence, motivation, and a sense of community.
